

That's when Luke discovered a big red fish in a stagnant puddle. It was lying on its side in the shallow, smelly water, its gills pumping desperately, trying to get enough oxygen into its body.

“It's dying,” said Luke. “The water's too hot and too shallow for it to breathe properly.” Straddling the pool, Luke used his hands to frantically shovel out mud. “Come on! Help me!” he said. “We might be able to save its life.”

Keep digging!
